ESSAY

72. According to the author, changes in the business and social world can be grouped into six major environmental categories. List these six categories and give an example of each.

Graders Info :

Changes within the business and social world can be grouped into six major environmental categories (acronym: SEPTIC):

- Social/cultural. Examples include immigration, increase in the number of single-parent families, religion, ethnic shifts, and aging population.
- Economic. Examples include recessions, inflation, changing income levels, and cost of housing, food, and energy.
- People (demographic). Examples include increasing numbers of baby and echo boomers, and changing ethnic and multicultural patterns.
- Technological. Examples include biotechnology, the Internet, nanotechnology, personal genomics, and universal translation.

- e) International (legal/political). Examples include ruling political parties and changing rules-locally, provincially, and nationally-and tax laws. It is necessary to identify the growing export markets.
- f) Competition. Examples include deregulation, impact of the box stores, and invasion of domestic markets by foreign companies.

73. List three possible market signals.

Graders Info :

Answers will vary. Some possible signals might be:

- long lines
- increase in back orders
- discount advertising
- help-wanted advertising
- heavy publicity
- fall in stock prices
- bankruptcy rates

74. In reference to the life-cycle stages, list
- a. two products that are in the decline stage
 - b. two products that are in the embryonic stage.

Graders Info :

Answers will vary. Some examples of industries in the declining stage could include those for:

- a)
 - letter writing
 - VCRs
 - wired home phones
 - tobacco products

Answers will vary. Possible products or services in the embryonic stage could include:

- parallel computing

75. For consumers, five key factors have splintered the mass market. Briefly explain.

Graders Info :

Five key factors have splintered the mass market:

- a) A shrinking middle class. There are more high-end, affluent consumers and an increasing number of low-income consumers (for example, part-time workers, single parents, and contract workers).
- b) Shifting sizes of age groups. Each age group has particular well-defined needs. For example the echo boomers, the tweens, and the affluent over-80-year-olds are changing demographic segments that have specific needs.
- c) Changing and evolving living arrangements are changing and evolving. These include step-families, dual-career families, single-parent families, grandparents raising grandchildren, three-generation households, more adult children returning to the nest, and the increasing number of empty nesters. Each of these groups has a different need for such things as furniture, housing, transportation, and food preparation.
- d) Growing ethnic groups with specific needs. Canada's visible minority population has shown a three-fold increase since 1981, according to Statistics Canada. Each ethnic group has specific and individual needs.
- e) Improved information access. The increasingly electronic economy means that all Canadians are better informed. They can search the Internet to get product and company information from around the world, and can make purchases with the click of a mouse.

76. According to Industry Canada, your e-commerce strategy should be composed of five stages. Briefly explain each stage.

Graders Info :

According to Industry Canada, an e-commerce strategy should be composed of five stages:

- Communicating-E-mail and Internet Access
Stage 1: The Internet allows the business owner and staff to communicate inexpensively and precisely with suppliers, customers, and others by e-mail, while creating instant records of the exchanges.
- Promoting-Create Your Own Website
Stage 2: In some ways, the web is like a 21st-century version of the Yellow Pages[™]. At the very least, it can serve as a great place to "strut your stuff" at a cost-effective price.
- Linking Internally-Communicate Better Within Your Firm
Stage 3: Using an intranet, you can improve company processes such as project management, human resources, purchase orders, and inventory.
- Linking Externally-Include Suppliers and Customers
Stage 4: The large payoff comes when a business uses the Internet to link with suppliers and customers (extranet). The Internet can serve both as an inexpensive way to increase sales and a cost-effective way to link with suppliers.
- Creating New Business Models-Share Resources and Risk With Virtual Business Partners
Stage 5: The Internet has the potential to act as a central nervous system coordinating the firm's business activities. For example, sales information can be shared instantaneously with wholesalers, shippers, manufacturers, designers, and even suppliers of raw material. Suddenly, you would have an integrated supply chain.

77. According to the text, what three major questions should your elevator pitch answer?

Graders Info :

An elevator pitch should answer three major questions:
